Solidarity Fund PL within the framework of the EU funded „EU4Skills” Programme and in accordance with art.4, point 8 of the law of the Republic of Poland of 29 January 2004 on public procurement invites interested experts to apply for a position/ assignment of:

Labour Market Information – Expert on Methodologies for Labour Market Studies

1. Background information

The EU4Skills programme is a multidonor programme funded by the EU and its member states: Germany, Finland and Poland. The aim of the programme is to assist the reform of TVET sector in Ukraine. Programme’s activities focus on modernization of the content of education and improvement of its quality as well as on the reform of VET governance.

Vocational education has been clearly designated in Ukraine as a regional responsibility, and both Regional Councils (elected bodies) and Regional State Administrations (executive bodies) now have the responsibility for developing strategies, allocating funding and ensuring operational management of regional VET systems. However, regional governments lack the experience, capacity and resources to not simply maintain the status quo but to introduce methods and approaches that would transform VET systems and institutions in line with the national reform principles, regional development priorities and the requirements of dynamically shifting regional economies and labour markets.

Solidarity Fund PL (SF PL) is a Programme’s partner organization and its work package under the EU4Skills Programme primarily focuses on strengthening capacities of the regions to manage their VET provision networks and on helping the regions to conduct evidence-based policies in the VET sector. This work package (referred later as “SF PL Work Package”) contains 5 major activities, namely:

2.11 – Development of Labour Market Intelligence System

1.2. – Development of 7 regional VET action plans

1.6. – Development of VET funding mechanism

1.7. - Development of VET budgeting mechanisms

2.11. – Support to development of career guidance service provision

Most of the abovementioned activities will be implemented in 7 focus regions of Ukraine. However, the models and solutions developed will also be promoted across the whole country.

Expert engagement under this assignment will be related to activity 2.11 – Development of Labour Market Intelligence System.

Most of vocational training in Ukraine is based on the so-called ‘regional order’ – a process where each region identifies the type and number of occupations/seats to be allocated and funded. In theory, this process should take into account the regional and industry current and forecasted labour needs. In practice, however, the actual number of trainees is estimated by the VET schools themselves with little consultation from the employers and no research. The VET schools usually only collect and take into account the information on the occupations which are already taught at the school. At the regional level, there are currently no practices to conduct regular labour market analyses, yet every regional government in Ukraine is acutely aware of severe labour imbalances and shortages in many sectors. The limited information available from the Statistics Office and State Employment Service either covers only a small percentage of the population (registered unemployed) or offers little insight as to the occupational structure of the labour market. Thus, the regions need to be provided with inexpensive and easy-to-use tools and methodologies for collecting and analyzing labour market information for the purpose of both operational and strategic planning of regional VET systems. The regional VET Councils also need to be educated on how this information can be interpreted and used in making recommendations to governments and training institutions.

- a) To provide advice and consultations in developing of methodologies, procedures, approaches and practices related to labour market information analysis and forecasting for VET planning within a decentralized context.
- b) Based on inputs of statistical, survey and other data, contribute to preparation of comprehensive labour market analysis and forecasting reports for the 7 regions, co-ordinating of drafting work
